

To Netball America and participants of the 2011 National Netball Championships:

First of all, I would really like to thank Netball America for all their hard work and effort in promoting netball across the USA. I had first heard of netball when I spent time in Australia. When I came across Netball America showcasing netball in Indiana early in 2010 I was surprised to see the sport in the USA, and as District Director of Physical Education and Health Literacy for Miami-Dade County Public Schools I could see the benefits it would bring to my education curriculum.

The level of professionalism, enthusiasm and vision displayed by Netball America has inspired not only me but my teachers, so I'm very excited to have Netball America partner with Miami-Dade County Public Schools to include netball as part of our core education curriculum.

Good luck with the championships and I'm sorry I can't be there as I'm presenting to the Sports Council in China.

Dr. Jayne Greenberg

About Dr. Jayne Greenberg

Dr. Jayne D. Greenberg has recently been appointed to the President's Council on Fitness, Sports & Nutrition. President Obama said (in the press release about Dr. Jayne's appointment), "These dedicated individuals bring a wealth of experience and talent to their new roles and I am proud to have them serve in this Administration. I look forward to working with them in the months and years to come."

In addition to this role, Dr. Jayne is the District Director of Physical Education and Health Literacy for Miami-Dade County Public Schools. Previously, she served as Special Advisor on Youth Fitness to the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports and as President of the Florida Alliance for Health, Physical Education, Recreation, Dance, and Driver Education. Dr. Greenberg assisted the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services in developing the "I Can Do It, You Can Do It Program," addressing physical activity for youth with disabilities
